

Welcome

Campbell's Kitchen

Hi!

My name is Cindy, and I head up Campbell's Kitchen. For over 17 years I have worked with my team to create great-tasting recipes for families across America.

Over the years, Campbell's Kitchen staff has developed a friendship with America's cooks. We develop and send out recipes, and in turn, our friends share their creations with us. My colleagues exchange ideas with me every day. Through the power of the Internet, our friendships continue to grow.

To create this collection, I teamed up with my friends across the country to bring you our families' favorite recipes. You too can develop your own creations, by substituting ingredients and adding your family's favorite flavors. On the following pages, we'll show you how.

This collection also includes helpful cooking tips and money-saving coupons. We've tucked in information on how you can get free stuff for your kids' school through Campbell's Labels for Education program. I also invite you to sign up for Meal-Mail, a recipe emailed daily from Campbell's Kitchen.

My family cooked with Campbell's soups long before I joined the company. (I can't imagine a holiday dinner without my Aunt Reba's Green Bean Casserole made with Campbell's Cream of Mushroom soup!) For me, creating and sharing recipes from Campbell's Kitchen has been the continuation of a long family tradition.

I hope these recipes make it easier for you to gather your family around the table for a home-cooked meal. And if you have a favorite you'd like to share with me, I'd love to try it for my family.

Fondly,

From the desk of Cindy Ayres

the Label Lady

Hi, I'm Anne. It seems like only yesterday my children were in school and I participated in Campbell's Labels for Education program. Today, I work for Campbell and I am deeply involved with the program. In fact, my kids call me the "Label Lady." I love helping parents across the country build better schools for our children.

Participating in the program is easy. Just save labels from Campbell's products and your school can redeem them for free educational, recreational and sporting equipment. The labels I saved over the years helped earn my kids new computers, software, books and musical instruments.

Campbell's Labels For Education is a no-hassle fundraiser my whole family got involved with. Just save labels from products you already use and love. Labels can be collected and redeemed at any time, and there is no limit to the amount of merchandise your school can earn.

My kids got so excited about the program when they were little. They tore labels from Campbell's soup cans stocked in my pantry. That often meant grilled cheese sandwiches and Campbell's soup surprise for dinner!

Over the past 29 years, families like ours have helped Campbell deliver nearly $100 million in valuable merchandise to our schools. Together, we are building better schools for our children—one label at a time!

Hope to hear from you soon.

Anne

Making it Yours

Hi! My name is Andrea, and I'm the mother of three boys, Liam (7), Patrick (9), and Daniel (11). I work for Campbell part-time. My job is to meet with people like you and me who use Campbell's products, and gather their opinions. I ask questions about new product ideas, new soup flavors, advertising and recipes.

Many of the folks I speak to are moms who, like me, are pressed for time but still want to prepare delicious, homemade meals for their families. With my three boys—four, including my husband—I know how important it is to catch up with family at the dinner table.

That's where Campbell's recipes can help. In just 20 minutes or less, I can prepare a home cooked meal I know my family will love. My boys especially love moist and creamy dishes like Tasty 2-Step Chicken, made with Campbell's Cream of Mushroom soup. I can add my personal touch to make it fit the many tastes of my hungry gang. My son Daniel loves when I add broccoli and serve it with noodles. My husband Ed likes it served over pasta with garlic and extra mushrooms.

I just know these recipes will please your family as much as they do mine. Many can be made in two easy steps, with tips on how to add ingredients you probably have on hand to make the dish your very own.

Enjoy these delicious ways to bring your family together for dinner!

Green Bean Casserole

America's Favorite Holiday Tradition

Jeff Bedard

Public Relations

Perhaps the most famous creation to emerge from the Campbell's Kitchen at the Campbell Soup Co. is the recipe for Green Bean Casserole, that holiday favorite of creamy, saucy green beans topped with crisp French Fried onions. What American family hasn't had this on its Thanksgiving table?

Very few, according to statistics from Campbell. This popular side dish takes its place alongside turkey on more than 20 million holiday tables each year.

Originally christened "Green Bean Bake," today's Green Bean Casserole recipe is requested by more than 10,000 home cooks each year, but most frequently during the holidays. The recipe coats green beans with a saucy combination of Campbell's Condensed Cream of Mushroom Soup and a splash of soy sauce. The green beans are then smothered with crunchy French Fried onions for the perfect finish.

The recipe was created in 1953 by Dorcas Reilly, former manager of the Campbell Kitchen.

"My initial inspiration for the Green Bean

Casserole was really quite simple," says Reilly, whom Campbell calls the "grandmother" of the Green Bean Casserole. "I wanted to create a quick and easy recipe around two things most Americans always have on hand - green beans and Campbell's Condensed Cream of Mushroom Soup.

Why has it become a classic?" "Green Bean Casserole has become an American holiday tradition because it's attractive, convenient, and quite easy to transport to a party or potluck dinner," Reilly says. "And best of all, friends and family look forward to eating it at the holidays—or any day of the year."

Over the years, consumers have customized the recipe by adding or substituting different ingredients and flavors - by topping it with shredded cheddar cheese or crunchy, chopped red bell pepper, by substituting Campbell's Condensed Golden Mushroom or Campbell's 98% Fat Free Cream of Mushroom Soup in lieu of regular Cream of Mushroom.

Even Cindy Ayers, who heads up Campbell's Kitchen, varies the basic recipe. "I still love it today because I can tailor it to perfectly suit my family's needs," Ayers says. "The options are endless, and, any way you customize it, it's certain to become a family favorite."

No Time To Make a Traditional Sauce? Try Cooking With Campbell's Condensed Soups!

By Jennifer Cobb
Campbell's Kitchen

The Campbell Soup Company has been producing M'm! M'm! Good! condensed soups since 1897 when John Dorrance came up with a way to remove water from soup to make it easier for consumers to use at home.

Dorrance was a true culinarian in every sense of the word. He studied in Germany and developed a taste for soup and a passion for food. After returning the U.S., Dorrance continued to study under top chefs in Paris for 2 months each year and was named an honorary member of an elite French chef association. He even won a gold medal at the Paris exhibition of 1903.

Perhaps what is most interesting about Mr. Dorrance's creation, is how closely several of his soups (Cream of Mushroom, Cream of Chicken and Tomato) mirror the system of classic sauces developed by Carême. This system includes four sauces referred to as "mother sauces," because all other sauces are made from them. The mother sauces are:

Bechamel: A white sauce made from milk or cream thickened with a roux, a mixture of butter and flour that has been cooked.

Velouté: Also a white sauce, made from chicken, veal, or fish stock and thickened with a roux usually made with flour and chicken fat instead of butter.

Tomato: Essentially a tomato sauce bound on a mix of pork fat and flour. Tomato commonly also contains browned onions and carrots and various seasonings.

Espagnole: Also known as brown sauce. Made from beef stock, herbs, and tomatoes, and thickened with a browned mix of fat and flour.

Before John Dorrance created Campbell's condensed soups, home cooks who wanted to create these sauces had to make them themselves. Now home cooks can add moisture and creaminess to their favorite recipe without the hassle or time required to create one of these sauces from scratch.

For example, Cream of Mushroom soup performs in many ways like a bechamel sauce. Characterized by its smooth, creamy texture, Cream of Mushroom soup is an ideal alternative to a white sauce because of its adaptable flavor and ability to thicken, bind and coat a wide range of foods.

Cream of Chicken soup is similar in flavor and consistency to a velouté sauce and allows home cooks to prepare meals in minutes without the labor-intensive steps required to make a traditional velouté.

"Many American cooks have never made a roux and don't know what a bechamel should look, smell or taste like," said Cindy Ayers of Campbell's Kitchen. "Campbell's Condensed Cream of Mushroom and Cream of Chicken soups offer busy home cooks all of the convenience of a ready-to-use sauce. They not only minimize the time investment needed to prepare a sauce from scratch, but they also remove the guesswork."

With Campbell's Condensed cooking soups, even the busiest home cook can create a delicious, creamy sauce in minutes by blending the soup with favorite flavors and seasonings.
